METRO.USSCOTT WINS US SENATE SEAT AFTER RECOUNT

Florida's outgoing governor, Republican Rick Scott, was declared the winner of the state's hard-fought U.S. Senate race on Sunday, following a recount of ballots in the tight contest against three-term Democratic incumbent Bill Nelson. In the recount of the Nov. 6 election, Scott won by 10,033 votes out of 8.19 million cast statewide, Florida elections officials said on Sunday. Scott took 50.05 percent, compared with 49.93 percent for Nelson, the officials added. Nelson, first elected to the Senate in 2000, became the latest incumbent Democratic senator toppled in the midterm congressional election in which President Donald Trump's fellow Republicans expanded their majority in the Senate but lost control of the House of Representatives. Scott, who was prevented by state law from running for a third term as governor, emerged from the Nov. 6 vote with a lead of less than 0.5 percentage points, which prompted a recount of the ballots. Republicans including Trump made allegations, without offering evidence, that the process was marred by fraud.

NEW SALVADORAN
MIGRANT CARAVAN FORMS

At least 150 Salvadorans set off on Sunday from their impoverished Central American country in a U.S.-bound caravan, ignoring their likely rejection at the U.S.-Mexico border where a larger caravan of mostly Hondurans has been stalled for days. Guarded by police officers, the men, women and children of the gathering caravan marched through San Salvador's streets to Guatemala-bound buses, loaded with heavy backpacks, water and the knowledge of an arduous 2,700-mile trek ahead to the U.S. border. The group from El Salvador was at least the fourth caravan to set off since a first, large-scale mobilization in neighboring Honduras, which departed on Oct. 13 from the crime-wracked northern city of San Pedro Sula. That caravan quickly grew to thousands as it moved north on daily 30-mile treks. Many of its members were still winding their way on Sunday through Mexico toward the U.S. border, where hundreds of early arrivals have been waiting since last week to cross. Salvadorans organized themselves on social networks and the WhatsApp application to launch the latest effort.

ANTI-IMMIGRANT ACTIVISTS
RALLY AT US-MEXICO BORDER

An anti-immigrant protester shouts before marching with fellow demonstrators on an immigrant shelter on Sunday in Tijuana. Several hundred Mexican demonstrators marched to the shelter near the U.S.-Mexico border, demanding that members of the migrant caravan, most from Honduras, leave the country. Immigrants have been arriving to the shelter after traveling thousands of miles from Central America.

BLAME PASSED OVER PASSED
GAS AT DARTS GRAND SLAM

Players set more than just their arrows flying at the Grand Slam of Darts this week, with opponents rowing over who had emitted noxious smells during their match, media reported on Saturday. Twice world champion Scotsman Gary Anderson, 47, won Friday's match 10-2 to reach the quarterfinals but his Dutch opponent Wesley Harms, 34, said he was affected by the "fragrant smell." Anderson had left as they played. "It'll take me two nights to lose this smell from my nose," Harms told Dutch television station RTL7L. However, world No. 4 Anderson said the smell had come "from the table side" at the Aldersley Leisure Village venue, in the English Midlands town of Wolverhampton, suggesting it was from the crowd. "If the boy thinks I've farted he's 1,010 percent wrong. I had a bad stomach once onstage before and admitted it. So I'm not going to lie about farting on stage," he was quoted as saying by the BBC. "Every time I walked past there was a waft of rotten eggs so that's why I was thinking it was him. It was bad. It was a stink, then he started to play better and I thought he must have needed to get some wind out."

Grim search for 1,276 missing after deadliest California wildfire

More than 12,700 homes have been destroyed so far.

Authorities sifted through the charred wreckage of California's deadliest-ever wildfire on Sunday, searching for signs of the 1,276 people now listed as missing after the Camp Fire tore through the mountain town of Paradise.

The remains of 76 people have been recovered so far, 63 of whom have been tentatively identified pending DNA confirmation. Early on Sunday, the blaze, which ignited on Nov. 8, was 60 percent contained, officials said, up from 55 percent Saturday.

Rain is forecast for the area this week, potentially helping douse the flames but raising the risk of floods and mudslides, adding to the misery of 46,000 people under evacuation orders.

Many refugees from the fire have taken up temporary residence with friends and relatives, while others have pitched tents or were camping out of their vehicles.

The death toll far surpasses the previous fatality record from a single California wildfire — 29 in the Griffith Park fire of 1933 in Los Angeles — and already ranks among the deadliest U.S. wildfires since the turn of the last century.

Eighty-seven people perished in the Big Burn firestorm that swept the Northern Rockies in August 1910. Minnesota's Cloquet Fire in October 1918 killed 450 people.

In Paradise, the flames moved so fast that some victims died in their cars in a chaotic evacuation as gridlock formed on the two exit routes out of town.

The Butte County Sheriff's Office said the list of the missing is compiled using information received from a special hotline, as well as emails and emergency-911 calls that came in during the first chaotic hours of the blaze.

Authorities said some of those listed likely survived but have not yet notified family or officials, either because they lack phone service or were unaware anyone was looking for them.

In Paradise, home to nearly 27,000 people before the Camp Fire struck, two forensic anthropologists for the University of Nevada, Reno, were helping firefighters on Saturday sort through the wreckage at a mobile home park for senior citizens.

Firefighters peeled back the metal sheet of a collapsed roof as the anthropologists picked up charred bone fragments, sorting them into paper bags.

Roger Fielding, chief deputy coroner with the Martin County Sheriff's Office, said each site was treated as a crime scene, with every step of recovery documented with photographs.

"Our job is to pick up any items that might reflect who this person might be," he said.

Besides the toll on human life, property losses from the blaze make it the most destructive in California history, posing the additional challenge of providing long-term shelter for many thousands of displaced residents.

At the latest count, the Camp Fire had destroyed more than 12,700 homes and other structures, authorities said on Sunday.

Up to four inches of rain is expected to fall from late Tuesday through Friday in the Sierra Foothills, the National Weather Service's Weather Prediction Center said.

Proud Boys, protesters clash in Philly

A police chief was punched during protests held on Saturday at the "We the People" rally.

letters@metro.us

What started out as a small protest by a conservative political group on Saturday in Philadelphia led to an officer being punched, several arrests and numerous scuffles after those with opposing political views began a counter-protest.

The initial protest, named the "We the People" rally, was planned by the conservative political group Proud Boys, who identified themselves as "patriots" described as "pro-good cop, pro-ICE, pro-law and order, pro-life, pro-American value, pro-gun, and anti-illegal immigration," according to a Facebook page for the event.

Anti-racism protesters (L) and far-right conservatives (R) attend the "We the People" rally in Philadelphia amid counter-protests.

ALL GETTY IMAGES

Roughly 30 people showed up in support of the Proud Boys at a Philadelphia park outside of the Independence Visitor Center; counter-protesters outnumbered them, 10 to one. It was the Proud Boys' first appearance since several members were arrested in a highly publicized October brawl in New York City.

Saturday's events did not live up to expectations, at least to some counter-protesters.

"I kind of wonder if they were just screwing with us, that they made some event to get other people to waste their day," Michael Bartolone, who drove from New York City to join the counter-protesters, told The Washington Post. "Was this all a ruse on their part or were they scared off?"

Philadelphia Mayor James Kenney and the police, who had caught wind of the two opposing groups' plans to protest, prepared for all possibilities prior to the rally on Saturday, with the mayor sharing that there would be "coverage" of the event.

While both sides chanted and gave speeches, Philadelphia police had hundreds of officers at the ready for an outbreak of violence, keeping the two groups mostly separated by Jersey barriers.

"I've only seen one guy get punched so far today," shared Boston resident Gregg Housh, who attended to counter-protest the conservative group. "That's because one of the alt-right guys got out of their pen and walked around to the other side, walked right into the middle and starting yelling Trump stuff at them," he shared.

The officer who was punched is said to be fine following the incident.

The Proud Boys were created by Vice co-founder Gavin McInnes.

Defense lawyer uses Stephen Curry analogy in Vetrano murder trial

Closing arguments in the Queens jogger murder case are scheduled for Monday.

letters@metro.us

Both prosecution and defense sides rested their cases on Thursday following another intense day in court for the murder trial of Queens jogger Karina Vetrano. Closing arguments in the case with jury deliberations are scheduled for Monday.

The defense lawyer for murder suspect Chanel Lewis attempted to convince the jury on Thursday that her client's DNA was found on the body of Vetrano by transfer alone and not due to a violent act.

Using Golden State Warriors point guard Stephen Curry in an analogy, defense attorney Jennie Cheung painted a picture of just how that may have happened.

"Steph Curry passes [the ball] to Kevin Durant, who shoots, makes a three-pointer," Cheung stated while cross-examining prosecution DNA expert Linda Razzano.

"[Durant] goes to get his water bottle. It's possible for Steph Curry to get DNA on that bottle?"

"Steph Curry passes [the ball] to Kevin Durant, who shoots, makes a three-pointer. [Durant] goes to get his water bottle. It's possible for Steph Curry to get DNA on that bottle?"

Jennie Cheung, defense attorney

Assistant District Attorney Brad Leventhal was quick to object to Cheung's analogy.

State Supreme Court Judge Michael Aloise asked the witness, "Are you following this?"

"I do follow," Razzano stated, acknowledging that it is a possibility.

Lewis is accused of brutally strangling and raping Vetrano back in 2016. The suspect was arrested after DNA found under the nails of Vetrano implicated him in the murder.

At the time of his arrest, Lewis confessed on tape. His admission of guilt was later dismissed, with his lawyer stating that it was obtained illegally.

As for the possibility that Vetrano was raped during the altercation, Dr. Margaret Prial, who performed the autopsy, acknowledged during the case that it was possible the victim could have suffered those injuries after being dragged through the brush of Spring Creek Park.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It’s Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it’s complex. In other words, it’s not a simple, easy fix.

But I’m sure you already know that. Or you wouldn’t be reading this.

That’s the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It’s amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can’t give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here’s What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what’s going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what’s going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I’m out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

LGB individuals twice as likely to misuse opioids, NYU study finds NYU Langone Health released a new study on how the opioid crisis is hitting the LGB population particularly hard.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

The opioid crisis is reaching staggering levels across the country, but one group may be at particular risk. Men and women who identify as lesbian, gay or bisexual (LGB) are twice as likely to misuse opioids than those who identify as heterosexual, according to a new study out of New York University.

NYU School of Medicine researchers Dustin T. Duncan and Joseph J. Palamar led the study, which was published in Monday's American Journal of Preventive Medicine.

Their findings are important, they said, because this is the first study to look specifically at the opioid crisis and sexual orientation on a national scale.

"I've studied drug use among people who identify as gay, bisexual, and so on and a lot of research has already concluded that sexual minorities are at a higher risk compared to heterosexuals for use of various drugs, but there hasn't been a lot of focus on opioid misuse," Palamar said. "Furthermore, there hasn't been any analysis of nationally-represented samples."

Most studies that look at drug use among the LGB population are based on small samples of individual communities, meaning those findings are not generalizable to the whole United States. NYU's study, however, is.

NYU researchers relied on data from the 2015 National Survey on Drug Use and Health, in which more than 42,000 people were asked about their sexual orientation and any misuse of opioids in the past year, as well as "past-month and past-year prescription opioid use." This was the first year this national survey asked about sexual orientation.

Opioid misuse means using the drug in some sort of non-medical manner, Palamar explained, whether using it without a prescription, in larger or longer doses than prescribed, or against a doctor's recommendations.

Just how different is the opioid crisis for the LGB population? While an estimated 5 percent of adults who identify as heterosexual in the U.S. have misused opioids in the past year, according to study, that jumps to 9 percent for individuals who identify as gay or lesbian and 12 percent for those who identify as bisexual.

Bisexual women were found to be the most at risk of opioid misuse.

The NYU researchers see this study as a first step in exploring differences in opioid misuse by sexual orientation.

"One thing we want to do is start the conversation, and this is the start of the conversation — documenting differences," said Duncan. "The next step is to look at determinants. What is the reason for these differences?"

"One thing we want to do is start the conversation, and this is the start of the conversation — documenting differences."

Dustin T. Duncan,
NYU School of Medicine researcher

The NYU researchers believe the opioid crisis is hitting the LGB population particularly hard because these individuals may be using drugs to cope with the stress, stigma and discrimination they face for their sexual orientation.

Trump does not want to hear 'vicious' Khashoggi murder tape

President Donald Trump said he does not want to listen to an audio recording of the murder of Saudi journalist Jamal Khashoggi despite facing mounting pressure to punish Saudi Arabia for the killing.

Khashoggi was killed inside the Saudi consulate in Istanbul on Oct. 2, and Turkey has given the U.S. government a recording of the murder, but Trump said he would not listen to it "because it's a suffering tape, it's a terrible tape."

"I don't want to hear the tape, no reason for me to hear the tape," Trump said in an interview with "Fox News Sunday."

"I know everything that went on in the tape without having to hear it ... It was very violent, very vicious and terrible."

Trump also said he wants to maintain a close alliance with Saudi Arabia despite Khashoggi's death and questioned the alleged role of Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman, who is known as MbS and is the kingdom's de facto ruler.

"He told me that he had nothing to do with it," Trump said, adding that "many people" also said the crown prince had no knowledge of the killing.

The interview was taped on Friday, hours before government sources said the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) had briefed the Trump administration on the murder and its belief that MbS ordered it.

Trump said on Saturday that the CIA assessment was "very premature" and in the interview that aired on Sunday he said it may never be possible to know who ordered Khashoggi's murder.

Trump faces intense pressure from senior Democratic and Republican lawmakers to take tougher action against Saudi Arabia. Some have said Trump should suspend arms sales to the kingdom and drop his support for MbS, but Trump has so far resisted that pressure.

President Donald Trump

The administration on Thursday imposed economic sanctions on 17 Saudi officials for their alleged role in the killing, but they did not target the Saudi government.

Saudi Arabia is a major oil supplier and a close ally of the United States in countering Iranian power in the Middle East.

Republican Sen. Lindsey Graham, a close ally of Trump, said on Sunday he had no doubt about MbS' involvement in ordering the murder of Khashoggi.

"They are an important ally but when it comes to the crown prince, he's irrational, he's unhinged and I think he's done a lot of damage to the relationship [between] the United States and Saudi Arabia. And I have no intention of working with him ever again," he said on NBC's "Meet the Press." REUTERS

Browns: We haven't discussed Condi Rice for head coach

The former secretary of state admitted she would like to "call a play or two next season."

Cleveland Browns general manager John Dorsey denied the team has discussed interviewing former Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice for the Browns' head coaching job on Sunday. Dorsey issued the statement after a report from ESPN's Adam Schefter said the team was hoping to interview Rice.

"Former Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice is a great leader, possesses the highest possible character and also happens to be a Browns fan," Dorsey said. "I have the utmost respect and admiration for all she's accomplished and was honored to meet her for the first time earlier this season. Our coaching search will be thorough and deliberate, but we are still in the process of composing the list of candidates and Secretary Rice has not been discussed."

Rice is a longtime fan of the Browns. She joined owners Dee and Jimmy Haslam on the field in Oakland on Sept. 30, when the Browns were in town to play the Raiders.

If the team were to interview Rice, it would make her the first woman ever interviewed for a head-coaching job by an NFL team.

On her Facebook page, Rice issued a statement:

"I love my Browns — and I know they will hire an experienced coach to take us to the next level."

"On a more serious note, I do hope that the NFL will start to bring women into the coaching profession as position coaches and eventually coordinators and head coaches. One doesn't have to play the game to understand it and motivate players. But experience counts — and it is time to develop a pool of experienced women coaches.

"BTW — I'm not ready to coach but I would like to call a play or two next season if the Browns need ideas! And at no time will I call for a 'prevent defense.'"

Rice has served as a member of the College Football Playoff selection committee and led a commission this year studying potential changes for college basketball.

Dorsey will lead the search for Jackson's replacement, with the Oklahoma Sooners coach Lincoln Riley and Baltimore Ravens coach John Harbaugh have also had their names floated as potential targets.

When riders fall asleep on the train and occupy the seat next to them, we feel terrible waking them up and then are left without a seat! Truly inconsiderate. I

A disabled person would most certainly want that seat you happen to be occupying with your backpack or purse or whatever extra you are carrying. Wake up, people!!

See and be seen

The Water Tower takes the rooftop bar concept to intimate and delicious new heights.

EVA KIS

Rooftop bars are so last season. The hottest new place to party is inside a Brooklyn water tower.

The Williamsburg Hotel has turned an iconic part of the New York City skyline into The Water Tower, an intimate lounge with unobstructed views of Manhattan from right on the waterfront. But that's not the only view: Unlike the wooden water towers that still dot the roofs of most taller buildings in the city, The Water Tower was purpose-built as a chic see-and-be-seen space with glass walls for 360-degree views.

The walls are covered in giant posters with commiserating catchphrases ("Take my advice, I don't use it anymore") and well-worn slogans ("If I can make it there, I'll make it anywhere"), creating a feeling that you're not just term relationships. After hours, The Water Tower transitions into more of a nightclub feel with nightly DJs from around the world.

The cocktails will impress those used to paying for the location rather than the quality when it comes to rooftop bars, with drinks like Message in a Bottle (Bacardi rum, clarified milk punch, blue majik pineapple juice, Chinese cinnamon cordial). On the food side, Executive Chef Nic Caicedo keeps it simple and seasonal with items like steak tartare and truffle grilled-cheese sandwiches, plus a raw bar.

Michael Peña says 'Narcos: Mexico' is 'more ambitious' than 'The Wire'

The actor also opens up about doing right by his character, who is based on a real DEA agent.

ANDREW HUSBAND
letters@metro.us

Whether made by esteemed television critics or cultural historians digging into the parallels between storytelling mediums, David Simon's breathtaking HBO series "The Wire" is often described as a novel in television form. That is to say, its seasons may consist of 20 or more individual episodes, but the story they tell is far more serialized than it is episodic.

Another crime series, Netflix's "Narcos," has operated in a similar fashion for three seasons and, with "Narcos: Mexico," is sticking to the formula. But according to actor Michael Peña, who plays DEA Agent Enrique "Kiki" Camarena in the show's Mexico-centric "reboot" of sorts, what they're doing is "more ambitious" than what came before it.

"For my money, the first three seasons of 'Narcos' were crazier," he tells Metro. "It's based on true stories, so that added a whole other element to this. I like 'The Wire,' for sure, but this is a more ambitious take on television."

Before diehard Simon devotees get up in arms about Peña's comments, however, consider the fact that serialized television since "The Wire" has progressed and regressed in waves. What's more, with the benefit of streaming's ability to cater to binge-watchers, this means that shows like "Narcos: Mexico" can, in fact, do things that broadcast or cable programs before it were never able to accomplish.

There are several recent book series, like Suzanne Collins's "The Hunger Games" and Stieg Larsson's "The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo," that serve as great models for what "Narcos" and "Narcos: Mexico" are trying to do. Of course, Peña acknowledges that those two examples were turned into movies instead of television, but that doesn't mean it can't work here.

"It's like one story and they're really writing more like a novel than your standard procedural," he explains. "And I think they're so binge-watchable because of this, because they're so in-depth with the characters and certain parts of the story. I think it would be a good movie, but now with the way television is going, they can really dive in with it. They got their finger on the pulse of the viewers."

In particular, Peña says he was drawn to "Narcos: Mexico" because of what this storytelling approach did for his character, Camarena, and his adversary Miguel Ángel Félix Gallardo, the real-life corrupt cop turned drug kingpin played by Diego Luna.

"He was a guy who didn't appreciate crime. Crime was basically stealing from, or taking advantage of, good people, so he had a resentment about that that made him more driven," he says of his character, whom he spent a great deal of time researching before filming. "If you read that part, you can play him a very saintly or righteous kind of way, but I always think you should be more specific with it."

"You're not exactly worried about being like with a character like this, or a story like this," Peña adds. "It's the exact opposite of Luis in 'Ant-Man and the Wasp,' who wants to be liked and is always trying to fit in. With this guy, his mantra was, 'I don't care if you like me or not, but eventually you're going to respect me.' And I think that's how he lived his life."

"Narcos: Mexico" is now on Netflix.

What are the best companies to work for in the US?

Zippia's annual "Best Companies to Work For" list is out, and it may surprise you!

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

Every year, the popular job-search site Zippia releases its comprehensive list of the 100 "Best Companies to Work for in America." Many of the usual suspects are included in this year's list. But, the companies that top the list for 2018 may not be the ones you would guess.

So what goes into the decision-making process in choosing these companies? Well, unlike most job-search sites that may have some outside influences that weigh into their rankings, that charge companies to be considered or use employee ratings, Zippia chooses to look at the facts and stay as objective as possible.

"The way that we kind of approached our company rankings was with the same sort of mindset of wanting to provide a data-driven list that would be objective rather than something based on employer reviews that would be subjective," explained Drew Walters, a marketing strategist with Zippia. "We tried to figure out some of the shortcomings that some of these lists usually have."

By taking this approach, Zippia uses three different characteristics to rank each company. The first is overall financial health. This comes from a calculation of the company's overall revenue stream and the total number of years it has been around so that they can gauge a sense of its overall stability. The second factor is how competitive each salary is for every position. The last factor is the overall diversity of the company. For this, Zippia not only looks into the gender and ethnic diversity of a company but also the difference in educational backgrounds and the diversity of political opinions and contributions a company has made in the past.

With all of these different factors, the list not only includes some big names like Twitter and Exxon Mobil but some lesser-known names like Baker McKenzie and Maersk Line. Walters believes that by taking such an objective approach, Zippia was able to look past the name recognition of some of these larger companies to inform job-seekers of some other truly great places to work.

"Obviously, you are going to see a lot of brand names and well-recognized names on the list," says Walters. "But, the whole goal is to hopefully give job-seekers a list of the best companies objectively. Maybe give some exposure to some companies that are really great places to work, that they have never heard of before."

Barkley, four INTs feature in New York's win over Bucs.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Saquon Barkley put together one of his finest days as a pro as he and Eli Manning led the New York Giants to a 38-35 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Sunday afternoon.

The rookie running back recorded 142 rushing yards and three combined touchdowns, which was just enough to hold off a surge from Buccaneers backup quarterback Jameis Winston.

After Ryan Fitzpatrick was benched early in the second half, Winston led the Bucs on four touchdown drives, which were almost enough to see the Giants blow a 17-point third-quarter lead.

For a team that has had issues scoring early all season, there were no such problems on Sunday as Manning, who completed 17-of-18 passes for 231 yards and two touchdowns, got the offense rolling early.

It took just six plays to get on the board, a six-yard touchdown reception by Barkley giving the Giants the lead just 3:18 into the game. The easy score was set up by a 41-yard completion from Manning to Odell Beckham Jr.

New York gained even more momentum when the defense came up with a huge fourth-down stop on the Giants five-yard-line, stuffing a Fitzpatrick sneak attempt to keep the lead.

The offense answered with an ensuing 12-play, 95-yard off the turnover-on-downs where Barkley once again punched in a five-yard touchdown. This time, though, it was on the ground as he capped off the Giants' longest-scoring drive of the season.

Barkley also became the first Giants rookie since Butch Woolfolk in 1982 to record a rushing and receiving touchdown in the same game.

After scrambling for a one-yard touchdown on fourth down, Fitzpatrick's luck would run out as he threw three of Tampa Bay's four interceptions on successive drives, forcing the Bucs to bench him in favor of Jameis Winston.

In the final minute of the first half and deep in Giants territory, Fitzpatrick forced a ball into double coverage that was picked off by Michael Thomas to keep the Giants' lead intact.

The following drive to start the second half saw Fitzpatrick picked off by Alec Ogletree on Tampa Bay's 15-yard line and returned for a touchdown to put the Giants up 21-7.

Curtis Riley got in on the fun when he picked off Fitzpatrick in the end zone. Pressure forced the veteran quarterback to heave a pop-up that was caught easily by the safety and returned to the Giants' 40. It resulted in an Aldrick Rosas 52-yard field goal to put the Giants up 17.

Winston ran with his chance under center as he tore apart the Giants with three straight touchdown drives. Only a Beckham touchdown catch allowed the Giants to keep a slim lead because, with 5:11 to go, Winston hit Adam Humphrey on an eight-yard touchdown to cut New York's lead to just three.

Barkley's third touchdown of the day was canceled out by a 41-yard score by Mike Evans, but the Winston magic ran out in the final seconds, when he was picked off by B.W. Webb.

Islanders smacked at home by Stars

Islanders' home point streak ends at seven games.

joseph.pantorno@metro.us

A disastrous second period which saw four goals conceded, including three in a 4:59 span, saw the New York Islanders drop a Sunday matinee to the Dallas Stars, 6-2.

It snaps a two-game winning streak, a seven-game home point streak and a brilliant stretch of play from goalie Thomas Greiss. Entering the day, New York's No. 1 goalie was looking unbeatable behind a .930 save percentage.

He wouldn't even last two periods as he gave up three goals on just 19 shots before getting the hook, spoiling a promising start to the afternoon.

After a hat-trick on Thursday night in a win over the New York Rangers, Anthony Beauvillier added his fourth goal in four periods to give the Islanders a lead.

The 21-year-old, who had just a single point in his first 16 games this year, received a feed from Valtteri Filppula off a Ryan Pullock slap shot that was turned away by Ben Bishop. It was an easy snipe as the Stars goalie was scrambling to get back in position just four minutes into the game.

It was all they were able to snag in a first period in which it largely dominated.

Dallas would find an equalizer early in the second period when Esa Lindell snapped a wrist shot past a screened Greiss. Alexander Radulov was stationed in front of the net to limit the Islanders goalie's vision and defenseman Nick Leddy did little to unseat him from his spot.

Just 2:31 later, the Stars took the lead when Roope Hintz scored the first NHL goal of his career, another wrist-shot that squirted through the five-hole of Greiss.

It got worse just 2:28 later, when he allowed another Lindell wrist shot to get under him, ending a heinous five-minute spell and Greiss' day as he was pulled for Robin Lehner.

Tyler Seguin would add a fourth with 5:53 left in the period as the rout was on.

The Islanders regained their legs in the third period and Scott Mayfield brought the Islanders within two just 24 seconds into the frame. It was as close as they'd get, as Radulov iced the game with a pair of tallies.
